REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance.

The invention as claimed is directed to a method for improving affinity between a fibrin glue and expanded PTFE or silicone comprising irradiating a surface of expanded PTFE or silicone with ions at a dose of  $1 \times 10^{12}$  to  $1 \times 10^{16}$  ions/cm<sup>2</sup> then applying a fibrin glue to the irradiated surface. The ion used is He+, Ne+, Ar+, or Kr+.

Murayama et al., Whitmore et al., and Suzuki et al. represent the closest prior art.

Regarding the rejection over Murayama et al., upon reconsideration the examiner agrees with the applicants that Murayama et al. does not teach or fairly suggest a process in which the substrate is subjected to irradiation prior to the application of the coating.

The rejections over Whitmore et al. in view of Suzuki et al. have been withdrawn upon further consideration in view of the applicants' arguments. Upon reconsideration the examiner agrees that one skilled in the art would not be capable of predicting that fibrin glue would have an adhesion to the irradiation polymer of Suzuki et al. comparable to that of cells cultured in vitro. A review of the Suzuki et al. reference, particularly results section 3.1 on cell attachability leads the examiner to agree with the applicants' contention that the proposed combination would not have been obvious to one skilled in the art. The complex nature of the chemistry can be seen in the different results attained using different substrates and different degrees of irradiation. Thus, one skilled in the art would lack a reasonable expectation of success that employing an irradiation regime designed to promote one type of attachment (e.g. in vitro cell attachment) could be used to promote an unrelated for of attachment (e.g. fibrin glue).

Art Unit: 1794

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
